Why allocate to a portfolio:

- Exposure to real assets, particularly private real assets, may help bridge the return gap of a traditional balanced portfolio without overly extending risk.
- A real asset portfolio may provide exposure to lower correlated return streams relative to traditional asset classes.
- Real asset exposure may provide investors with attractive current yields and help to mitigate the impact of inflation.

Returns represent past performance and do not guarantee future results. Share price, principal value, and return will vary and you may have a gain or loss when shares are sold. Current performance may be lower or higher than quoted. For the most recent month-end performance, visit www.PrincipalAM.com/interval.

³ Performance assumes reinvestment of all dividends and capital gains. Returns displayed reflect the application of net total investment expense.

⁴ The fund is subject to annual expenses including management fees, distribution and/or service (12b-1) fees, interest payments on borrowed funds, acquired funds fees, and other expenses. These fees and expenses are reflected in the expense ratios shown. The net expense ratio reflects contractual expense limits, if any, which may lower net expenses and cause the gross and net expense ratios to differ. In such cases a date is listed through which expense limits are expected to apply; however, the Fund and the investment adviser may mutually agree to terminate the expense limits prior to the end of the period. Returns displayed are based on net total investment expense.

Returns shown for periods of less than one year are not annualized.

Principal Real Asset Fund is a closed-end investment company that continuously offers its shares. Investors in a closed-end fund do not have the right to redeem their shares on a daily basis at a price based on NAV per share. There is no secondary market for the Shares, and the Fund does not expect a secondary market will develop. You may not be able to sell your Shares when and/or in the amount that you desire.

Effective September 30, 2023 the name changed from Principal Diversified Select Real Asset Fund to Principal Real Asset Fund.

The Fund is structured as an interval fund, which means it conducts quarterly repurchase offers of no less than 5% of the Fund's outstanding shares at net asset value ("NAV"). Investors should not rely on any expectation of repurchase offers being made in excess of 5%.

Investors should consider the Fund's shares illiquid. The ability of investors to sell shares to access their invested capital is very limited.

Investing in the Fund is speculative and involves a high degree of risk, including the risks associated with leverage and the risk of a substantial loss of investment.

Real estate investment options, such as real estate investment trusts (REITs) and commercial mortgage backed securities (CMBS), are subject to risks associated with credit, liquidity, interest rate fluctuation, adverse general and local economic conditions, and decreases in real estate values and occupancy rates. Investments in companies involved in agriculture, infrastructure, natural resources and energy can be significantly affected by government policies, regulations, interest costs, surplus capacity, weather conditions, and natural disasters. Investing in derivatives entails specific risks relating to liquidity, leverage, and credit, which may reduce returns and/or increase volatility. The use of leverage increases investment exposure and has the potential to magnify losses. International and global investing involves greater risks such as currency fluctuations, political/social instability and differing accounting standards. Risk is magnified in emerging markets, which may lack established legal, political, business or social structures to support securities markets. Fixed-income investments are subject to interest rate risk; as interest rates rise their value will decline. Floating rate debt instruments are subject to credit risk, interest rate risk, and impaired collateral risk, which means that the value of the collateral used to secure a loan held by the fund could decline over the course of the loan. Lower-rated securities are subject to additional credit and default risks.

Due to the inherent uncertainty and subjectivity of determining the fair value of investments that do not have a readily available market value, the fair value of the Fund's private investments may differ significantly from the values that would have been used had a readily available market value existed and may differ materially from the amounts the Fund may realize on any disposition of such investments.

Asset allocation and diversification do not ensure a profit or protect against a loss.

Carefully consider a fund's objectives, risks, charges, and expenses. Contact your financial professional or visit www.PrincipalAM.com for a prospectus, or summary prospectus if available, containing this and other information. Please read it carefully before investing.
